

BURBANK - YEAR 2009, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 5

By Kenneth E. Norwood
Planning Department

Viewed from the air the basic pattern of Burbank is somewhat similar to 50 years ago, in 1959. But, now, building complexes appear to completely cover some areas; many green, open areas appear spotted among the residential developments; and the view is entirely free of overhead power lines, antennae, etc. Only partially distinguishable are the local street patterns of 1959, and only several small areas remain of the gridiron pattern. The tree-lined freeways, rapid transit routes, and park belts are most dominant, forming a crisscross pattern defining neighborhood units. The basic architectural forms of today are a combination of long, flat, and wide buildings punctured with square and rectangular courts; and of towers, projecting through the roofs; some squat and solid while others are tall, slim, and open. Quite prominent are the domed and arched roofs over buildings in the open recreational areas. Several major elements of Burbank are presented below.

POPULATION AND RESIDENTIAL LIVING - The population is 150,000, with only 12 percent in single family houses and 88 percent in multiple units, such as family type, multi-level garden apartments, apartment towers made of plastic, and those living in the complexes. The building complexes are allowed in the C-R zone, called commercial-residential. These complexes are supposed to be the ultimate in urban living, combining offices, hotels, apartments, shops, restaurants, etc., in one continuous complex of buildings, malls, and arcades.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY - The several original business districts and industrial areas of 1959 have expanded and merged into almost continuous building complexes completely free of auto traffic. The San Fernando Mall, Magnolia Mall, and Riverside-Toluca Mall are outstanding shopping and business centers. Industry is composed mostly of design and computation offices; research and testing laboratories; and control stations for automatic production plants, communication, and air and space transportation systems. Moving sidewalks are widely used along the malls, and arcades interconnecting the building groups.

POWER AND WATER - There is no visible evidence of power stations, substations, or power lines as underground atomic power units are located to serve each section of the city. Power is transmitted by waves rather than carried on poles, and the power line rights-of-way have been reclaimed for productive use. Water is abundant enough to maintain the mountains as year-round green recreation parks, and to provide all the needs of residents and commerce.

EDUCATION AND CULTURE - Due to the 30-hour week, the increase of free time and demands for higher technical and scientific skills now require more use of the combined educational and cultural facilities in the schools by all age groups. The art gallery, concert auditorium, science demonstration laboratories, etc., are integrated into the Burbank Junior College campus, and other upper level school plants, to serve the whole community. Burbank has also developed into it's Civic Center a cultural and science education center which houses exhibition halls, museums, and a convention arena. The schools have all been redesigned with flexible interior and exterior class areas, and full use of closed-channel TV is provided for special events, instruction aids, and travel experiences.

RECREATION - The Verdugo Hills Regional Park is a year-round green area, irrigated from surplus water, with hiking trails, picnic groves, three golf courses, baseball stadia, field sports, air sports courses, etc. This park was created by cut-and-fill reclamation and now serves the dense metropolitan areas around it. Green strips cut across the city connecting major recreational areas, schools and cultural centers.

TRANSPORTATION - Rapid mono-rail routes connect metro centers, with pick-up stations at the Lockheed Air Control Center, and at each of the main malls in Burbank. Unlike auto parking in 1959, there is no parking on streets or open lots, but in fully automatic parking units located at each main destination point. Short-haul air transit, intra-regional and inter-city, with use of the vertical take-off (VTO) craft for business, pleasure, and emergency work, is quite intense. Air transit stations are located at each major commercial complex, with the Lockheed Air Control Center serving as the intra-regional VTO Terminal, and the transfer point to the passenger rocket terminals. Lockheed cannot be identified from the air as in 1959 with the broad openness of landing strips. It is now solid building with an occasional tower, and the roof is spotted with VTO take-off pads. Freight traffic within Burbank has been replaced by the continuous belt system which travels through covered ducts passing under the building complexes, apartment towers, and through to other cities.

DO YOU KNOW MAURICE RAMAGE?

Daughter Dying, Mother Seeks Help In Locating Son-in-Law

(It is against general policy of the Daily Review to publish personal appeals to locate missing persons. It is felt, however, that the circumstances in the following case warrant exception.—Ed.)

The mother of an Indianapolis woman dying with cancer appealed to the Daily Review today to help locate the victim's estranged husband, believed to be living in Burbank. A letter asking help was sent to the Review by Kathryn Wetzel, 2924 E. 24th St., Indianapolis, Ind. She said she has made several fruitless attempts to locate Maurice Ramage, now divorced from her daughter, Anne, and father of their three children. His picture is printed with this story. Ramage was at first believed to have been working as a bartender in a Valley restaurant, Mrs. Wetzel wrote, but a telephone call there turned up no trace of the missing man. "Our daughter has cancer and only a short time to live,"

Mrs. Wetzel said. "Of course she hasn't been told how soon death will come but a doctor has told the family she has one or two months to live at the longest."

She described Ramage as blond, blue-eyed, about 5 feet, 8 inches in height and weighs about 130 pounds.

"He was a good man," Mrs. Wetzel said. "But they just didn't seem to get along . . . mostly money matters."

Mrs. Wetzel said she has contacted Valley police who said they would attempt to locate Ramage. The children are Michael, 8; Gary, 7, and Gregory, 2.

Ramage left Indianapolis about two years ago. He telephoned Mrs. Ramage later and said he was living in Burbank. "Anne says if she could see Maurice, it would help," Mrs. Wetzel wrote. "Do you think you can help?" Mrs. Wetzel's Indianapolis telephone number is LL 24948.

Most Food Items In Good Supply

Burbank's reopened retail food stores reported fairly heavy turnouts of shoppers today as they resumed operations following a 28-day shutdown. Most market managers said that all items including meats and produce were in plentiful supply.

First area market to reopen was Bill's Ranch Market which resumed operations at 12:00 midnight. The other major chain stores opened their doors at 9:00 this morning.

The agreement halting the tie-up was ratified yesterday afternoon by food market owners. Clerks will vote in secret ballot Feb. 9, 11, 12 and 13 at the union's Hollywood offices.

A spokesman for the market owners estimated the loss in business to some 2,000 closed markets throughout the Los Angeles area at $10 million. He said that it cannot be determined how much trade has been permanently lost to independent markets.

The job of restocking the stores with perishable items had started even earlier.

Both management and union spokesmen have expressed satisfaction over the new contract which provides an increase of 68.8 cents hourly in wages and other benefits over

Mexico Raid Traps 2 Hollywood Men

ROSARITO BEACH, Mexico, (AP)—The Mexican government's promised crackdown on gambling by Americans south of the border came today with a raid on a casino here.

Federal judicial police, supported by 60 soldiers, closed the Club Latino Americano, which had operated since last summer under the guise of a private club.

They arrested 66 American men, seven women and 10 Mexican citizens. These included both employees and patrons of the establishment in which dice and twenty-one games were in operation. The government had announced in Mexico City several times, in response to repeated rumors that American gamblers were going to start operations at various places south of the border, that no permits would be granted.

Today's raid closed the only place known to be in operation. It had no permit.

Those arrested included Felipe Arce, Tijuana, chief cashier, and two American brothers, Tony and John Neals of 1545 Las Palmas Ave., Hollywood, described by officers as assistant cashiers.

Another club in Tijuana had been fitted out with equipment shipped from Las Vegas, Nev., and rumors had said it was to open last Jan. 1. It never opened. There had been other rumors of gambling plans by Americans at Nogales, Mexicali, and Ensenada, all on or near the border.

The raiding police and troops, totaling 75, were led by Col. Manuel Suarez Dominguez, chief of federal judicial police. Cardenas Rojas, representing the federal attorney general's office in Mexico City, was with the raiders.

Those arrested were to be taken before a federal judge at Tijuana, on the border. Rosario Beach is 18 miles south of the border. The club which was closed is near the Rosario Beach Hotel, a resort patronized largely by Americans.

The raid started at 11:30 last night and was disclosed at 2 a.m. today. Those arrested were being held at the club pending their court appearance.

FAITHFUL DOG FINDS MASTER IN HOSPITAL

Distance and a strange neighborhood proved no obstacle for Beajacque, a tiny, 2½-year-old brown poodle who wanted to visit his hospitalized master.

Early yesterday morning, actor Bruce Kirk, 20, heard a scratching at the door of his room at Hollywood Leland Hospital where he is undergoing treatment for a bleeding ulcer.

An investigation turned up the exhausted poodle, who with tongue dragging, had scamped some eight or nine blocks to the hospital from 1315 N. Bronson Ave., Hollywood, where his mistress, Mimi Kirk, was staying while her husband was hospitalized.

Mrs. Kirk said the Hollywood home, that of her parents', was unfamiliar to the dog and that he had made only one prior trip, and that by car, to the hospital.

Liquor Store Clerk Shot During Holdup

A clerk in a Hollywood liquor store was shot and killed today during a holdup and two ex-convicts were booked on suspicion of his murder.

The clerk, Leland Brouse, 49, of 7964 Fountain Ave., the father of two children, was slain as he ran from the store at 6445 Hollywood Blvd.

Brouse was shot down as he chased a get-away car containing two gunmen.

A police officer, Adam Saffian, 39, was wounded in the arm as he gave chase.

The get-away car was located several hours after the holdup and Walter Raymond Dees, 47, and Vernon Charles Kerfoot, 45, both transients and ex-convicts, were arrested as they tried to get into the car.

Police said both men refused to discuss the case. Police said the men were nabbed as they tried to get into the car which was left at Selma Ave. and McCadden Pl.

In a similar act of violence, an 18-year-old youth was critically wounded by a Los Angeles liquor store owner defending his property.

The youth, Robert J. Kane, of Long Beach, was booked on suspicion of robbery and assault, with intent to commit murder.

Kane was shot in the chest and abdomen during a gun-shot exchange with Elmer H. Waugh, owner of the store at 2000 W. Willow St. Waugh was not hit.

An Ecumenical Council is the most important meeting of church leaders in Roman Catholic dogma. Only 20 have been held in the history of the church and ecumenical dogma exchange with Elmer H. Waugh, owner of the store at 2000 W. Willow St. Waugh was not hit.

LONDON (AP)—Choking gray smog blanketed southern Britain today, raising fears of a repetition of the 1952 smog that killed 12,000 persons.

Government scientists warned that the concentration of smog and poisonous fumes in the fog already is worse than on the first day of the killer smog in December, 1952.

Weather experts predicted no early break in the fog but attributed the fog to the fact that the weather is so cold that the sun is not strong enough to melt the snow.

The smog is expected to last for several days.

Blamed For Looting Eight Hill Garages

Six Burbank teenagers are in custody today after allegedly burglarizing eight hill area garages and nearly a dozen other shops, homes and automobiles of their victims at about $150,000.

The six youths are believed to have recruited the help of groups of their own, as well as with an apparent connection. Officers say the eight garages burglarized last night are the same ones which were looted last night, according to reports by two of the youths who were arrested.

Detective Chief Bill said a variety of loot, including a power lawn mower and numerous tools, was recovered at the scene of one suspect. The youths range in age from 15 to 17 years. They told the Daily Review that the group of five boys apparently stole the various items after dark during the last week, then secreted them in a garage. All of these youths are in custody.

New Buena Vista Library Addition to Open Monday

The $32,000 addition to the Buena Vista branch of the Burbank Junior High, David Starr Jordan Junior High, Burroughs, American Luther, St. Finbar and Providence High.

Mayor Dallas M. Williams has been invited to officiate at the simple ceremony.

The new portion of the library adds 3000 square feet to the original 5000 square feet of area and took six months to complete, according to City Librarian Edward C. Perry.

The wing will contain a new children's room, Perry says, and work on the library branch also included enlarging storage and workroom areas.

"Heavy patronage by John Burroughs High School students created the need for improving the Buena Vista facility," Perry says. "The old children's room has now been turned into a teenage section."

Invited to attend the opening are Superintendent of Schools J. Russell Croft, members of the city library board, city administrators and councilmen, PTA representatives and others.

Also asked to attend are principals from schools served by the library. Student representatives will accompany the principals.

Schools expected to participate include Edison, Lincoln,

Roosevelt, Stevenson, Luther Burbank Junior High, David Starr Jordan Junior High, Burroughs, American Luther, St. Finbar and Providence High.
